

Press release May 29, 2006

Ginger Oil Company is pleased to announce the employment of Dan Bendig as Vice President – Exploration. He has been on retainer to Ginger Oil for the past two years and operates from our office in Columbus, Ohio.

He was previously employed at Conoco-Phillips for over twenty years. Positions included Chief Geophysicist in the United Kingdom where he oversaw their seismic programs in the North Sea. Other experience include the SE Asia, North and West Africa.

We see him as an excellent addition to our staff with his particular expertise. He will be involved in all of Gingers projects but foremost in Ohio and the North Sea.

Dan has degrees from Ohio State University (BS Physics), State University of New York (MA Geology) and University of London (MSc Stratigraphy).

He has a well developed network in the international oil and gas industry.

In conjunction with this appointment, Ginger has opened a branch office in London.

Hower, Dan Bendig will continue to work at our office in Columbus, Ohio and commute to London when required.
